ACT ONE SCENE ONE – THE QUAYSIDE OF PARAGONIA

(Ships' riggings seen in the background. The odd cask, barrel, bollard and fishing net.)

SONG ONE – “PARAGONIA” (Chorus Opening)

(As the music starts – for the first sixteen bars – THE ISLANDERS are happily milling about.)

Islanders: This is our island, the island of Paragonia.
Each day on our island,
We sing this merry roundelay: -
“Tra, la, la, la, la.
Tra, la, la, la, la, la.”
With song and dance, and many a romance –
Boys: The maidens frolic,
Girls: Their swains are bucolic
Boys: No melancholic notion ever crosses our brow.
Girls: What never?
Boys: No never!
Girls: What never?
Boys: Well hardly ever.
Girls: No, never?
Boys: Well, hardly ever....

All: Here on our island
The food grows in abundance
The soil is so fertile.
Mother Nature's uninhibited.
That's why we're singing
“Tra, la, la, la, la, la.”
The water's sweet, and the weather's a treat.
Paragonia's better than Utopia Limited!

(Music) Paragonia! (Music) Paragonia!
(Music) Paragonia! (Music) Paragonia!

Sing we then this roundelay,
Then shout Hip! Hooray!
Hip, hip, hip, hooray!
For Parago-ni-ay! (End Of Song)

(Enter DAISY)

Daisy: Shame on you! How can you be so content to idle and laze about, when you should be fighting for your existence?
An Islander: You mean – the Pirates?

Islanders:           (Shout) The Pirates!
 Daisy:                Of course I mean the Pirates
 Islanders:           (Shout) The Pirates!
 Daisy:                They invade Paragonia every three months, and all you can do is go on about how peaceful and happy we are.
 A Woman:           Regular little spitfire is Daisy.
 Another:             Just like her mother. (All agree)
 Daisy:                Yes, I am like my mother. And my father, too. I'm Corcoran, and proud of it...

SONG TWO – “DAUGHTER OF BUTTERCUP”

Daisy:                My mother was Buttercup, sweet little Buttercup,
 And she sold provisions to seamen.
 Ale and tobacco to many a Jack – oh!
 How she loved her able he-men!
 Islanders:           Oh! How she loved her able he-men!
 Daisy:                She married the Captain of a very fine ship.
 A worthy fellow called Corcoran.
 But an accident of birth caused the captain to slip.
 And Corcoran became an also-ran!
 Islanders:           Yes, Corcoran became an also-ran!
 Daisy:                But fate's cruel uppercut didn't stop Buttercup,
 For they were so happy together.
 Went into partnership, but then their charter ship
 Foundered and sank in foul weather.
 Islanders:           It foundered and sank in foul weather.
 Now, Daisy's her mother's pup, daughter of Buttercup,
 Is there a lovelier orphan?
 A prettier maiden your eyes never laid on –
 The daughter of Buttercup and Corc'ran
 Daisy:                True to her ways, she christened me Daisy,
 The orphan of Buttercup and Corc'ran! (End of Song)
 Daisy:                Well, if you won't do something about it, I will.
 A Man:                Something about what?
 A Woman:           She must mean – the Pirates!
 The Islanders:      (Shout) The Pirates!
 Daisy:                Yes – The Pirates!
 Islanders:           (Shout) The Pirates!

Daisy: I wish you'd stop doing that. As you know, every time they raid our shores, they demand free provisions for their next voyage. And to make sure we obey, they take a hostage with them.

A Man: Aye, and we all know who the hostage was they sailed with this morning.

A Woman: Christopher.

Another: Daisy's young man.

Daisy: My poor Christopher is even now a prisoner of that cut-throat band of Pirates...

Islanders: (Shout) The Pirates!

Daisy: ... and to make matters worse, the Pirates are all – women!

Islanders: (Shout) Women Pirates!

Daisy: So, I repeat, what are you going to do about it?

A Woman: What can we do?

A Man: We're powerless.

Daisy: Then if you won't help yourselves, I will. I shall leave these shores to seek help from anyone, man or woman, who will be bold enough to face up to the pirates.

Islanders: (Shout) The Pirates!

Daisy: That's all you can do, shout about it. I intend to put an end to their rampaging ways, once and for all. Bid me farewell. When the Pi.. the ladies of the sea return in three months time, they will find a nasty shock awaiting them! (She exits)

A Man: She certainly is a spirited young woman!

SONG THREE – REPRISE “DAUGHTER OF BUTTERCUP”

All: Her thoughts she won't cover up,
Daughter of Buttercup,
And we wish her luck with her ventures.
If she's successful, we won't find it stressful-
When those Pirates are sick to their dentures! (End of Song)

END OF SCENE ONE

SCENE TWO – THE PIRATE SHIP

(The female Pirates enter, “Yo-ho-ho” –ing, and doing piratical things, during the musical introduction)

SONG FOUR – PINAFORE PIRATES”

Pirates & Pirate Queen: Ploughing through the foaming waters,
Sailing the deep blue sea
All of us are well-bred daughters,
Ready for larceny!
There’s many a ship we’ve plundered,
For thund’ring good are we!
We’re the pick of the bunch
And we pack a punch
With our pinafore piracy!

Why should pirates be male,
Having all the fun?
After all, a female’s
As good as anyone!
So hoist our pirate flag,
And splice the main brace after.
It’s not the skull and Crossbones.
It’s the Fishnet and Garter!

Ploughing through the foaming waters,
Sailing the deep blue sea
All of us are well-bred daughters,
Ready for larceny!
Then heave ho! me beauties,
For beauties all are we.
We’re the pick of the bunch
And we pack a punch
With our pinafore piracy! (End of Song)

Pirate Queen: Ladies!

A pirate: Pray silence for our Cap’n, the Pirate Queen!

Pirates: The Pirate Queen

Queen: I can see by your high spirits that you’ve enjoyed your trip ashore in Paragonia. I hope everyone returned safely.

A Pirate: All present and correct, ma’am. Though Pirate Susan was rather reluctant to join us.

Queen: Pirate Susan, what is the meaning of this?

Susan: I met this handsome young man.

Queen: Must I remind you all of your solemn Pirate's Oath? For seven years, while we sail the seven seas, we renounce all amorous dalliance, and forswear the company of men, except for purely practical purposes.

A Pirate: But that Oath is so unfair.

Another: And so long!

Queen: Nevertheless, I bid you all swear it again!

All: For seven years, while we sail the seven seas, we renounce all amorous dalliance, and forswear the company of men, except for purely practical purposes.

Queen: Good.

Susan: Not so good. Another four years to go.

Queen: Silence when you speak to me! Am I not your Queen, who has lead you from success to success?

All: You are!

Queen: When the seas are smooth, have I not joined in your revels?

All: You have!

Queen: And when the seas are rough, have I not repaired your mascara?

All: You have!

Queen: Then let's have no more squabbling. It's are first morning at sea with a fair wind, and fine prospects. And talking of fine prospects, Pirate Cynthia, bring up our hostage!

Cynthia: With pleasure! (She exits)

A Pirate: What about the oath, Captain?

Queen: It doesn't say anything about looking on with approval. Ah, here comes the young man now. (Cynthia brings on CHRISTOPHER, a handsome young beau. The Pirates communally sigh.) Welcome to our ship. I trust you slept well.

Christopher: Not a wink. The bunk was most uncomfortable, the ship was heaving, and so was I.

Queen: I apologise for the sea discommoding you. As for your bunk, we are a pirate ship, and do not indulge in luxuries. Besides which, you are our hostage, and if I chose, I could make life much more uncomfortable for you.

A Pirate: Best keep in the Cap'n's good books.

Another: Aye! You'll be put to work soon enough, cleaning...

Another: Polishing...

Another: Swilling out...

Another: So best take it in good heart.

Christopher: How can I be good of heart, when my heart is broken?

Queen: Broken?

Pirates Broken? Ah... (A sigh)

Queen: Are we to take it that you have been crossed in love?

Christopher: No. Quite the reverse. There is no finer girl on the world than my Daisy.

Queen: Then what seems to be your problem?

Christopher: The problem is I'm here, and she's there. That rather spoils out togetherness.

Queen: Young man I don't believe I know your name?

Christopher: Christopher.

Queen: Well then Christopher, I admit that being parted from your lover is a temporary inconvenience, but stress the word temporary. In three months you will see her again.

Christopher: Three agonisingly long months.

(A dinner gong sounds)

Queen: Ah, the dinner gong. Let's see what Sam is serving up for us.

(Enter SAM O'NELLA, an ancient Irish cook)

Sam: Top o' the mornin', your Honour. What can old Sam O'Nella be doin' fer yiz?

Queen: Another three months at sea lies ahead, Sam. The larder's well stocked, so we expect a wide variety of succulent menus.

Sam: Succulent, is it? Well, let's see, there's Oirish stew with rabbit, Oirish stew with mutton, Oirish stew with Dublin prawns – or just plain Oirish stew. (The Pirates groan) Ah –fooled yiz all! Just an Oirish joke.

Queen: We are not amused.

Sam: Ah, to be sure, 'tis the trouble with women – no sense of humour! Very well, your honour, let me regale yiz all with some of the delights I have in mind for yiz...
